

Marie Gonzales

Dear Shirley:

Larry and I have been married for fifteen years, and as I reflect back, I realize that many of the qualities I saw in Larry when we were courting are the very same traits that will make him an excellent state representative.

Larry has a deep and abiding faith in God. All major life decisions are made prayerfully together in an attempt to seek God's will for our family. Larry also has a profound sense of honor and duty - he leads a life of service to our state, community, and family, consistently giving of his time and talents where he can help. Larry is the hardest working person I know. It is his belief in God, service, and diligence that make him a fabulous husband and father, and are the same qualities that will make him an effective leader representing our community in the Texas House.

I have mentioned to people during this campaign experience that I would vote for Larry even if I weren't married to him. Larry is incredibly knowledgeable on state issues, having served in the legislature for nine legislative sessions in several capacities, learning the issues and the process from some of the greatest Republican elected officials in Texas. Once elected, Larry will have the knowledge and skills to get to work right away for House District 52. Larry's valuable experience will make him far more effective than a typical "freshman" legislator.

I am so proud of Larry and all the work he has done over the years. From being a caring dad and husband, to running his business, to helping plan the future of Williamson County, to bringing a Republican majority to the Texas House of Representatives - and it's all done because he truly cares about our future.

I urge you to choose the candidate with the ideal balance of integrity and experience on March 2nd in the Republican Primary. Please join me in voting for my husband, Larry Gonzales, for State Representative, House District 52.

Sincerely,
